

UNDERGRADUATE TEACHING AWARD

The Center for Latin American Studies (CLAS) is pleased to offer undergraduates the opportunity to enrich their educational experience, enhance their resumé, and receive a cash award of $750. The CLAS Undergraduate Teaching Award for the Spring 2012 will be awarded to an outstanding undergraduate currently enrolled in Latin American Studies to assist a professor in teaching a Latin American course.

To apply, the student and the CLAS faculty member must present the following documents:

1. Nomination of a student for the award should be done by the faculty member in a maximum of three pages and should include:
 - (a) how the student will participate in the course and;
 - (b) how the student's involvement is expected to contribute to implementation of teaching innovation otherwise not possible without the time commitment of an assistant.
2. The student should submit a statement (three-page maximum) defining his/her own goals in the course;
3. The student should submit a current academic transcript (an unofficial copy is acceptable);
4. One letter of recommendation of the student's qualifications to serve as a teaching fellow should be submitted by a faculty member other than the sponsor;
5. The student's name, local and home addresses, phone numbers, and email address should be included in the application.

Applications for the award should be marked Undergraduate Teaching Award and sent to Julian Asenjo, Center for Latin American Studies, 4200 Posvar Hall.

Questions? Email: juasenjo@pitt.edu

The deadline for receipt of applications is November 1, 2011.

University Center for International Studies
Center for Latin American Studies
4200 Wesley W. Posvar Hall
University of Pittsburgh
Pittsburgh, PA 15260