Topics will include the history of the European Union, political and economic developments in Eastern Europe, analysis of main industries in each country, international trade, banking, education, health care, and tourism. These themes will be explored through guest lectures by academic, political and economic leaders in Prague and Krakow; field trips to sites of interest; and daily lectures by Dr. Svitlana Maksymenko (maks@pitt.edu) from Pitt's Department of Economics.
18467	HA-A Session: ST	HAA 1907	ARCHITECTURE & THE CITY IN CENTRAL EUROPE		Armstrong,Christopher Drew 3 Credits
After the demolition in 1858 of the obsolete fortifications surrounding Vienna, the capital of the Hapsburg Empire was rapidly transformed into one of the most innovative and modern cities in the world. The development of the Ringstrasse into a boulevard of parks, public squares and grand institutional buildings " comparable to the vast and virtually simultaneous interventions that transformed Paris during the Second Empire " made Vienna a model for other European cities. At the turn of the 20th century, Vienna was a showcase for sophisticated architecture and urban planning, and one of the major centers for architectural training in Eastern Europe. This course will examine the transformation of Vienna and the development of a distinctive school of architectural thought that produced some of the principal theorists connected with the emergence of modernism in the early 20th century. The dissemination and adaptation of the Viennese model will be considered in relation to projects undertaken in two provincial capitals, Zagreb and Ljubljana, where architects trained in Vienna and other European centers applied ideas developed in the capital to the periphery. Major architectural themes that will be emphasized in this course include:(1) the development of different building types to serve modern needs (museums, hospitals, apartment housing, villa or pavilion type housing);(2) tectonics and the expression of construction;(3) debates about the function and meaning of ornament;(4) historic preservation and building restoration. The written and built works of the following major central European architects will be examined in detail: Jozef Hoffmann, Adolf Loos, Josef Marie Olbrich, Joze Plecnik, Gottfried Semper, and Otto Wagner, as well as one house in Vienna designed by the philosopher Ludwig Wittgenstein. Classes will be held primarily on-site in Vienna and Zagreb. Students will be required to participate in discussions, apply theoretical ideas from major 19th- and 20th-century authors to the observation of buildings, and document sites through note-taking, drawing, measuring, and photography. Students will be given some training in basic techniques for documenting sites through drawing, measurement, and photography.
18999	HIST Session: 6W1	HIST 0187 TTh	WORLD WAR II-EUROPE 08:00 AM to 11:15 AM	CL 221	Hammond,Leslie Ann 3 Credits
The causes of WWII are surveyed, including World War I, The Russian Revolution, The Great Depression, and the Rise of Fascist Regimes. The determinants of German expansion will be discussed and related to the outbreak of war in 1939. The military struggle receives attention, but such topics as economic mobilization, propaganda, occupation policies, resistance movements and the Holocaust are also discussed. The course concludes with an analysis of war-time diplomacy, the postwar settlement, and the onset of the Cold War.

18343	HIST Session: 6W1	HIST 0302 TTh	SOVIET RUSSIA 06:00 PM to 09:15 PM	CL 221	Hier, Charles Bailey 3 Credits
The Russian Revolution of 1917 was the most radical revolution in history and had a profound impact on 20th century world history. The Bolshevik Party, which seized power in November 1917, sought not simply to change governments or the laws of the land, but to smash the old order, and to challenge the assumptions upon which all governments had hitherto ruled and all economies had been based. As we know, the Soviet experiment did not endure. The USSR's collapse in 1992 was as unexpected as its creation. This course will survey the history of the USSR. Particular attention will be paid to why the old order collapsed, the ideals which drove the early Soviet state, its attempt to 'modernize' the country at a frenetic pace, the role of violence as a means of governance, its experience in WWII and rise to World prominence, and its postwar efforts to balance the demands of 'mature Socialism' and superpower obligations. In the process, we will devote special attention to the state-society relations, the problems of economic development, and the tensions between revolutionary ideas and economic and political realities.
10808	HIST Session: 12W	HIST 1001 W	REQUIRED SEMINAR FOR MAJORS 06:00 PM to 09:15 PM	WWPH 3501	Hammond, Leslie Ann 3 Credits
In this course, focused on a cultural history of the early Cold War, students will explore the nature, uses and limitations of historical sources, both primary and secondary. These sources will include oral, written and image-based materials. Students will be required to engage seriously these sources and their contexts before coming to class in preparation for discussion and debate during class sessions. In addition to verbal participation, course requirements will include a variety of shorter papers as well as a final project totaling 2000 words.
19133	HIST Session: ST	HIST 1313 Sa	HISTORY OF RUSSIAN REVOLUTION 09:30 AM to 12:30 PM	CL 244A	Novosel, Anthony 3 Credits
This course is designed to investigate both the concept of revolution and its role in transforming Russia into the Soviet Union. The first area of investigation is the revolutionary process in terms of preconditions, overthrow, and aftermath. Revolution will be studied as a general phenomenon and related to the events taking place in Russia between 1900 and 1930. This 30-year period will be described and analyzed with an emphasis on violence in the years 1905 and 1917, as well as the relevant political, social, and economic developments. The goal is to place the 1917 revolution in context of change in Russia between 1900 and 1930 when the Stalinist system was established and maintained in principle until changed by Gorbachev and the termination of the Soviet Union itself in 1991. This course is designed to investigate both the concept of revolution and its role in transforming Russia into the Soviet Union. 11092	HIST Session: ST	HIST 1901	HISTORY OF ISTANBUL: ISLAMIC CITY AND SECULAR SOCIETY		Emiralioglu, Mevhibe Pinar Chase, William Whitehead, Jeffrey 3 Credits
This Integrated Field Trip Abroad (IFTA) will take place for approximately 15 days in Istanbul, Turkey. This course will enable the students to investigate the historical evolution of an Islamic city and a secular society, and to explore how these two concepts interact in present-day Turkey. During the program, the students will make daily visits to historical sites in Istanbul as well as in Bursa and Edirne, which were once Ottoman capital cities. These visits will aim to offer students a well-rounded and factual examination of Turkish society in general, and Istanbul in particular. Both the site visits and the lectures will provide the students with a non-U.S. view of historical developments at the intersection of the Middle East and Southeastern Europe.
15444	PS Session: 6W1	PS 1317 TTh	POLITICS OF THE EUROPEAN UNION 06:00 PM to 09:15 PM	LAWRN 207	3 Credits
This course is designed to introduce students to the design and functioning of the European Union. The course explores the European integration process from the post-war period until today, examining its major institutions, policy competencies, and roles in both national and international politics. By the end of the course, students should have a clear understanding of the European integration process and its daily functioning in contemporary European politics.

10693	SLAVIC Session: 6W1	RUSS 0090 TTh	RUSSIAN FAIRY TALES 06:00 PM to 09:15 PM	CL 332	Alpert,Erin Rebecca 3 Credits
-------	-------------------------------	-------------------------	--	--------	----------------------------------

This course introduces students to Russian fairy tales, a fascinating and productive genre of folklore that reveals a great deal about Russian traditions and modes of thought. Taking a psychological approach to the materials, the course examines not only the tales, but also the beliefs informing the magic world of these narratives. Since the humans, spirits, and beasts populating this world are richly portrayed in Russian art, a significant component of the course will consist of visual and audio representations of figures and scenes from fairy tales. We shall examine slides of posters, paintings, book illustrations, postcards, etc., and shall listen to music based on characters, situations, and narratives drawn from the tales (e.g., extracts from Glinka, Rimsky-Korsakov, Chaikovsky, and Mussorgsky).

10740	SLAVIC Session: 6W1	SLAV 0880 MW	VAMPIRE: BLOOD AND EMPIRE 06:00 PM to 09:15 PM	CL 332	Brevig,Hillary Elizabeth 3 Credits

This course examines the phenomenon of vampirism in verbal and visual texts from different time periods in various cultures (Russia, Poland, France, England, America). Why do vampires capture the imagination especially of Anglophone readers? What qualities does the vampire incarnate? Which historical events and customs have triggered particular enthusiasm for depicting the undead? How have the depictions of the vampire evolved over centuries? Our discussions will address these issues as we analyze stories, novels, and films focusing on vampires from a variety of critical perspectives, contextualizing the works in the cultures that produced them.

This intensive course has two components: The first, conversation, will consist of the preparation of dialogues, debates, and in-class discussions in Russian. The second, grammar, will be based on an accompanying grammar text, and on short compositions that draw on material covered in the text, and on videotapes from contemporary Russian media. The course objectives are: to develop a familiarity with the more subtle and complex aspects of Russian grammar; to develop an active vocabulary in practical, everyday topics, particularly those topics which will prepare students for travel to Russia; to refine composition skills. Selected readings in poetry and short stories provide a cultural component that complements grammar and conversation. This third-year Russian course is equivalent to Russian 0400 and 0410. This course is offered in the summer only as part of the Summer Intensive Russian Language Program. The 2011 Summer Russian Institute will take place on the Pitt campus during the period: June 6 through July 29, 2011 (8 weeks). Applications accepted on a rolling basis; space is limited. This course offers a rapid review of the more complex aspects of Russian grammar before concentrating on a selective survey of works from contemporary Russian literature and culture. Classroom activities focus on discussions of the assigned works, reports on the authors and cultural context, and presentations on various aspects of the texts. Homework assignments include summaries of the assigned readings, short essays on their authors, and stylistic analyses of the texts. There are three goals for this class: vocabulary expansion; enhancement of writing and speaking skills; and the acquisition of a basic knowledge of contemporary Russian literature and culture. This course is offered in the summer only as part of the Summer Intensive Russian Language Program. The 2011 Summer Russian Institute will take place on the Pitt campus during the period: June 6 through July 19, 2011 (8 weeks). Applications accepted on a rolling basis; space is limited.
