| Course/Module Narrative: | These lessons will occur in university-transfer history courses. In the World Civilizations II course (1500-present), this module would be taught after study of the French Revolution. Since there are four components of the module (causes, conditions, cures, and care) and multiple resources and activities, one can “pick and choose” elements without committing to the whole. When materials are considered as outside-of-class reading, students and instructor will discuss and analyze in next class meeting as well as any other activities noted in what follows. |

Course Objectives:

→ World Civilizations II Relevant Course Objectives for Module:

- detect and analyze key historical figures, locations, ideas, and events in later global history.
- assess the political, socioeconomic, and cultural developments and their influence on the course and character of later global history.
- differentiate between the chronological sequence and the causal relation between events.
- interpret both primary and secondary sources (including documents, cartoons, photographs, film, music, charts, and maps) effectively.
- appraise the multiple perspectives essential to study of the time periods, civilizations, and their controversies.
- utilize and analyze effectively various Internet resources on the material.

Module Objectives/Learning Objectives:

→ Causes

- Students will be able to articulate in a written response the key causes, course, and consequences of an Arab Spring revolution.
- Students will be able to collaborate to produce a group presentation on an Arab Spring revolution’s key causes, course, and consequences as well as compare it to a past revolution and connect it as a root cause of Europe’s migrant crisis.

→ Conditions

- Students will be able to discuss analytical conclusions about the physical, emotional, social, and economic conditions migrants to Europe experience through work in small groups, contributions to whole class discussions, and construction of individual exit tickets/journal responses.

→ Cure
Brussels Study Tour 2016
Post-Secondary Faculty Course Module Planning Template

- Students will be able to explain the European Union in brief to include reason for its formation, membership, structure and governance, responsibilities, finances, and challenges/controversies with the migrant crisis primary in focus.
- Students will be able to articulate what the European Union has done (and failed to do) about the migrant crisis as well as probable cures and their consequences.
- Students will be able to articulate what the United States has done (and failed to do) about the migrant crisis as well as probable cures and their consequences.

→ Care (Optional)
- Students will participate in a service learning project that addresses the migrant crisis in Europe or some extension of material learned (example: aid to the local Hispanic Task Force that works with migrants from the Americas in the community students call home).

Assigned Readings

→ For Conditions, work is completed in class without outside readings required.

Content & Delivery

→ group work in formal (Arab Spring presentations) and less formal settings (migrant color images table work)
→ written responses (on Arab Spring, the European Union, and the migrant crisis) out of class, in class, and in essay questions on midterm examination
→ service learning project (optional)

Assessment

→ For Causes, students will produce individually-written responses identifying the major elements of their group’s assigned Arab Spring revolution.

→ For Causes, students will contribute to the creation of a formal group presentation and discussion as assigned.

→ For Conditions, students will produce a group-constructed response analyzing unannotated photos of European migrants and what they bring for travel that will be in discussed in small groups and in the whole class setting.

→ For Conditions, students will compose individual exit ticket/journal response about their reactions to the resources on the conditions of migrants to Europe with this prompt: “Considering the conditions you examined for migrants to Europe, what are your most compelling conclusions and questions?”

→ For Cure, students will construct specific and relevant written responses to multiple short answer and essay questions on their midterm examination about the European Union itself as well as the European Union’s and the United States’ responses to the migrant crisis.

→ For Care, students who participated in the service learning project extension would be responsible for completing the approval, log, and evaluation forms at http://www.cccc.edu/studentservices/pals/student-info/.

Resources and Materials

→ For Causes, the following resources and materials:

1. Video overview summary to engage/introduce how Arab Spring and Europe’s migrant crisis are connected entitled “How the Arab Spring Changed Europe Forever” (2015) (4:10 length):

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=lGGDfmhKoyk

2. Overview summary on the Arab Spring as one of the root causes of Europe’s migrant crisis from brief CNN accounts of the revolutions in Tunisia, Egypt, Libya, Syria, and Yemen:

Also, overview summary on the Arab Spring by country produced by the BBC:

3. Overview summary of how Europe is impacted by the migrants/refugees from the Arab Spring in Backgrounders article “Europe’s Migration Crisis” from the Council on Foreign Relations:

Also, BBC recap posting on “Migrant crisis: Migration to Europe explained in seven charts:”

4. Handout for group research and presentation on the Arab Spring revolutions for world history students (French Revolution touchstone) [This could be adapted for use in an American history course after studying the American Revolution.] Appendix 1.

5. After student groups present, their Power Point/Prezi materials and the political cartoons shared are resources.

   http://www.bbc.co.uk/guides/zgjwtyc

These in-class activities in items 1 and 2 above are coupled with assigning out-of-class viewing of the University of Pittsburgh’s recorded presentation entitled “Rescue & Prevent: Responses to Europe’s Migration Crisis” (1:21:50) for in-class discussion to follow:

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=tB8f1WoYMTU

3. Next conduct direct instruction-style lecture on the European Union’s structure and function. The lecture is guided by a Power Point presentation that is a revised version of one presented by the EU Parliament to the EU Study Tour from the University of Pittsburgh in June 2016. Accompanying the lecture should be engaging questions from students such as comparing and contrasting the EU with more familiar bodies such as the United States Congress or the United Nations. 4. Instructor leads students in examining these online resources and discussing student reactions, conclusions, and questions about the cure for the migrant crisis:

   http://ec.europa.eu/priorities/migration_en (European Union’s priorities for the migrant crisis cure and video statement from Commission President Junker from official website)

5. Questions on the midterm examination to assess student learning on the European Union and reactions to the migrant crisis such as (but not limited to)

   What are the three components/branches of the European Union? Describe each branch’s major function/responsibilities and how it serves as a collaborator with and a counter to the other branches.

   How could the European Union’s initial reaction to the migrant crisis best be characterized?

http://www.cccc.edu/studentservices/pals/ and http://www.cccc.edu/studentservices/pals/student-info/

2. Time piece entitled “Here’s how you can help migrants in Europe” to direct thinking about what kind of service learning project would address the crisis studied:

Appendix 1

Arab Spring: Case Studies in Modern Day Revolution for World Civilizations Courses

As we examine revolution both from the French Revolution to the current Arab Spring in the Middle East, we're focused on the

SO WHAT

Here is your task.

1. You are assigned to a group by the Middle Eastern country you selected (Egypt, Libya, Syria, Tunisia, or Yemen), so meet with your peers to discuss a division of labor. You are preparing for your group to be able to share the answers to the questions above with the whole class during the assigned class meeting with a Power Point or Prezi.

2. You will be responsible not just for the presentation as described above but also for answering these questions above in hard copy. One answer set for each student individually will be stapled as a group packet for submission during the assigned class meeting.

3. Then thinking of the famed French Revolution political cartoon of the three estates (http://iss.schoolwires.com/cms/lib4/NC01000579/Centricity/Domain/2863/AP%20-French%20Revolution%20Political%20Cartoon.jpg), your group must find a political cartoon about your assigned country's revolution (causes, course, and/or consequence). During your group's report to the class, the political cartoon will be displayed for you to walk us through its analysis, asking probing questions of us.

4. Conclude your report to the class with the following discussion:

a. your appraisal of how the Arab Spring revolution you examined is and is not like the French Revolution we have used as our revolutionary touchstone.

b. your appraisal of how the Arab Spring revolution you examined is contributing to the migrant crisis the European Union and its citizens are challenged to address.
Appendix 2

In-Class Collaboration of Photograph of Era

Your table should examine the image affixed there. Then answer the questions that follow about that photograph.

I. Identifying & Detailing the Source

1. Who?
2. What?
3. When?
4. Where?
5. Why?
6. How?

II. Making Historical Predictions

1. What will happen an hour after this image is taken? Why do you come to this conclusion?

2. What will happen to the photograph's subject a month and then a year later? Explain the reasoning behind these conclusions.

III. Analyzing for Memory and Meaning

1. For the image, write an appropriate caption as if it was to be published in a magazine or journal.
