With the support of the Erasmus+ Programme
of the European Union

The Creating Europe Speaker Series is a two-year project funded by a Jean Monnet Project grant from the European Commission and part of a larger initiative to reimagine European Studies at the University of Pittsburgh. The series will explore ideas of Europe from Late Antiquity to the contemporary period and consider ways in which processes of “integration” and “disintegration” have been at work in Europe for much of its history.

Professor Holger A. Klein (Columbia University) joins Pitt Professor Shirin Fozi (HAA) and Professor James Pickett (History) for a discussion of his recent work entitled "From Robert College to the Byzantine Institute: The American Contribution to the Rediscovery, Study, and Preservation of Byzantine Monuments in Istanbul, ca.1830–1950" and how it informs our understanding of Europe in the Medieval period.

This is the first session of the two-year Creating Europe Speaker Series.
