

INFORMATION SESSION:

pitt in bolivia

culture, society & service learning

Date: Tuesday, November 16, 2021 at 12:00pm via Zoom

During the Inca Empire, Cochabamba was used strictly as farmland to feed the entire Inca Empire. Remains of this empire provide an excellent opportunity for students to study the remnants of this ancient civilization. Pitt in Bolivia: Culture, Society, & Service Learning offers students the opportunity to learn about contemporary issues facing a diverse and largely indigenous population. During this 6-week program, students will take courses on culture and infectious diseases specific to the Andean country. Understand and learn about communicable diseases and risk mitigation in this vulnerable population.

Learn more by registering for our information session at <https://bit.ly/3Fld2RD> or visit globalexperiences.pitt.edu/boliviaservicelearning

University of Pittsburgh®

Global Experiences Office

